FRIDAY EVENING. NOVEMBER 11. A TERRIBLE PUNISHMENT .- A private letter from Dale county, Ala., gives an account of the cremation of two colored men who had assaulted Miss Fralish, a respectable young white lady. Miss Fralish, who is the daughter of one of the leading farmers of the county, was alone at home a few nights ago, the rest of the family being abroad on business. Two colored men walked up to the gate and said they wanted something to eat, as they had been traveling a long distance and were hungry. The young lady, not dreaming of ill intent, told them to go around into the back yard, where she would give them some bread. No sooner had she turned her back tore enter the house than a big black hand was clasped around her mouth and she was lifted up and carried into one of the rooms. When the family returned they found the cirl in a faint from which she was, with difficulty, brought to consciousness. Herstory set the neighbors wild, and parties of men what out in all directions, running down the public roads and scouring the woods. One of the parties ran down two men near Bounding. who had assaulted Miss Fralish, a respecta-One of the parties ran down two men near Brundige, whose manner was such as to confirm suspicion of their guilt. They were taken to the Fralish residence, and as soon taken to the Fralish residence, and as soon as the young lady set her eyes upon them the cried, "They are the men; their faces are burned into my soul so that I can never forget them." The negroes cowered before her gaze and admitted their guilt. A trial followed, and the people decided that the two men should be burned to death. A leg pile was built upon the side of the public road, and the negroes were chained each between two heavy logs. Then the four logs were chained together, so that the wildest contortions of the wretches could not shake them. A fire was kindled which soon shake them. A fire was kindled which soon blazed up and enveloped the bodies of the victims. Their cries were most pitiful as the flames burned into their flesh. The cries grew fainter, the fire cooled down, and only ashes were left to tell the horrible story.

"Her face so fair, as flesh it seemed not,
But heavenly portrait of bright angel's hue,
Clear as the sky, without a blame or blot,
Through goodly mixture of complexions due
And in her cheeks the vermeil red did show."
This is the poet's description of a woman whose physical system was in a perfectly sound and healthy state, with every function acting properity, and is the envisble condition of its fair patrons produced by Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription."
